GOT TREATMENT???

—by Mr. G. Pyle

Are you looking for treatment? Do you want to change the way you have been operating? Well, Challenge isn't the only place to start. The Challenge Program falls under Psychology Services and is one of the many treatment programs available. Some of the major programs are: Drug Education, Non-Residential Drug Abuse Program (DAP), and Non-Residential Sex Offender Treatment Program (SOTP).

Also offered are the Priority Practice Groups (PPG) that are broken down into blocks of focus groups. The current group offerings are; Basic Cognitive Skills, which helps participants learn how to challenge their thinking; Criminal Thinking, which helps participants learn about the eight criminal thinking errors and how to correct criminal thinking; Emotional Self-Regulation, which helps participants learn how to manage their emotions and behaviors, and finally; Anger Management, which helps participants learn how to manage anger effectively through relaxation, cognitive interventions, and effective communication. These programs are offered throughout the year on a rotating basis. The classes usually run around twelve weeks and have around twelve participants per group. Priority for these groups goes to people not in the Challenge Program and are great opportunities to better yourself. PPG is facilitated by either Dr. Turner or Dr. Apodaca who are both Staff Psychologists. Please direct any emails or cop-outs to either of the aforementioned Doctors to express your interest in attending a PPG treatment program.

If you are interested in any other treatment programs, this is how you get started: Submit a request to staff with your group requests, current projected release date (PRD), and any other Psychology Programs in which you are currently enrolled. If you are currently in other psychology programs you will go on the wait list for PPG's. You can submit a paper cop-out or you can email; Psychology Services, DAP, Challenge, or SOMP. You will be placed on the wait list for the requested group(s). Maya Angelou once said: "If you don't like something, change it. If you can't change it, change your attitude."

LIFESTYLE BALANCE

-by Mr. Baslan

Before coming to prison, I used to work around the clock. I enjoyed my career, I considered myself to have a stellar work ethic and that I came from a culture that celebrated hard work.

As it turned out, my drive for work was also a mechanism for hiding issues that dwelt below the surface of professional attitude and workaholic approach to life.

This realization took place as I started my journey of self-reflection and opened myself to feedback from my Challenge Program peers. As my view of self became more accurate, I started to understand my limitations and how often I pushed myself in the past to unhealthy levels in order to avoid potentially painful subjects. In my group I often received feedback to "slow down," to try a board game, or to go for a walk. I would try, only to feel anxious believing that I was not being productive or that I was wasting time.

The change came about four months after I graduated the Challenge Program and was selected to stay as a graduate. I realized that I was about to wear myself down. I decided that it was time to take charge of my life balance. I would arrange for cell time with my celly or sit in bed after lights-out hoping to develop my meditation practice.

Enlightenment did not come. Instead, guilt and remorse surfaced. I began to see my old behavior in a new context. Things that were a source of pride became points of pain and regret. I realized how I hurt others. I would stay up for hours at night reflecting on my life in horror, as though in surprise; as though this was new.

It became clear that my coping mechanisms were laughing in the face of this long queue built on a life time of avoidance. My CTS at the time told me to slow it down, "one issue at a time", and "do not forget to live in the meantime."

The solution was to find an activity that anchored me in the here and now, to find space to heal without replaying the past in a continuous loop.

Painting came to be that activity. I chose still life subjects with lots of textures. I would paint them two or three times, listening to music and focusing my full attention on details.

Slowly my life style balance came back. I started working out more and taking time to watch movies occasionally. Most importantly, I had the energy to face my treatment issues with more depth, to be more honest with myself, and open-minded to others. When I need a break, I take time and look at my hobbies as a serious and integral part of my recovery.

A NEW FOUNDATION -Mr. M. Holmes

The Merriam-Webster dictionary defines a foundation as, "a basis upon which something stands or is supported."

When a person builds a home or a building, the first place they start is at the foundation, because without a foundation the structure will not be able to stand up against severe weather conditions. Eventually it will topple over and fall as if it were built upon a sandy foundation rather than a solid rock.

Prior to my incarceration, I attempted to build many things, such as, a reputation, character, a family, friendships, and credibility. At the time these things seemed to be intact, but it was all an illusion. Upon my indictment, all for the things I built began to fade away and diminish. They dwindled in such a subtle way that by the time that I realized the damage, everything had already collapsed.

All of the things that I was striving to build were doomed from the jump, because I gave no thought to the foundation that I was building them upon. My previous lifestyle consisted of lies, scandal, deceit, and corruption. I was doing my dirty deeds in the dark, failing to understand that it would be exposed by the light. At the age of 16, my grandfather told me that he spent 30 years building his roofing company, but it fell apart in one day. I thought he was just talking, so I didn't grasp the moral. Silly me.

Since being in prison, I have been on a mission to rebuild my reputation, character, family, friendships, and credibility. My relationship with Christ is what inspired me to change. The Challenge Program, gave me a platform to demonstrate my change before others.

My new foundation is built upon the 8 positive attitudes that I have known all of my life, yet failed to implement. Honesty, Humility, Objectivity, Caring, Responsibility, Gratitude, Open-mindedness and Willingness are very similar to the 9 fruits of the Spirit, which are love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, and temperance.

Being a Christian or Challenge Program participant does not make me perfect. I am still subject to persecution, adversity, pitfalls, temptation, failure, and everything else that people struggle with because I am human.

Today, I have a firm foundation to stand upon so I don't fall for just anything, and when I do stumble, I get right back up and try again.

So, I ask you, what is your foundation built upon?

EXHIBIT U

Anger Management and Sexual Offending

1. Describe how your emotions, including anger, contributed to your sexual offending.

I Struggled with suppressing negative emotions, then I expressed them with anger, aggression, and emotional violence. This resentment was used by me to justify my sexual entitlement and that my needs were more important than needs of others. I engaged in risky sexual behaviors and drug use, those choices facilitated the setting for my sexual offense.

2. Describe the passive and/or aggressive behavior you engaged in during or at the time of your sexual offense(s).

During my relationship with Kristen I became over-critical, initially without meaning to, she took it and tried her best to make me happy. I realize that what I did was very abusive form of manipulation. While it did not start that way, at some point I realized it's effectiveness and began to use it deliberately. I often maintained disapproval and rewarded approval only when she moved in a direction that worked for me, of course I could always withdraw my approval because my manipulation framed everything as her idea not mine--I was just going along.

In doing this my sadness and needs became life-critical for her, making me happy was a higher priority than her own needs.

Emotions I suppressed kept coming back because I did not employ or learn effective coping techniques, or seek help with my issues. These emotions provided the fuel needed to project what looked like genuine anger, pain, and displays of hurt that came from within but were directed at her.

~~Sex was a connecting activity but mostly it was not intimate so my constant disconnection and pressure took her existing thrill-seeking, risky sexual behavior and Drug use and escalated it. Again the abuse came because almost everything was framed to seem like her idea, so all negative consequences (like guilt) were pushed on her, and I could come out on top by gracefully forgiving.~~

Basically I took a lot emotionally, and gave little in return. I used her care and wanting me to be happy to get what I wanted. I turned her love for me against her.

My choice to suppress my emotions or express them through anger led to low self-esteem, and I covered my insecurities by constantly seeking to dominate as means to feel better about myself. But it had the opposite effect.

3. Discuss how managing your anger and other emotions will be important in desisting from future sexual offending.

As I learn to regulate my emotions, and resolve or accept inner conflicts that lead to anger, I would be more others-centered and keep in mind the needs of others. I would remain as I am now: averse to harming others.

As my self-esteem improves, healthy relationships are easier to form, and are very fulfilling. I am focusing on character development rather than sexual pursuits in order to validate my self-value.

4. Review your Anger Control Plan, and discuss which skills might apply to situations during which you may be at risk for sexual offending.

Situations:

- If I am faced with irritated person, stay calm, engage in empathic listening.
- Take a time-out if I become emotionally activated, if I feel negative emotions that may affect my receptivity or if it looks like I am starting to personalize the situation. Then challenge the thoughts through RSAs or by processing with safe harbor.

Preemptive:

- Meditation + Mindfulness.
- Recognize and process shame, guilt, negative judgments, and conflicts within, to explore and resolve.
(These are emotion, I believe, are linked to my offending)
- Practice Radical Acceptance, recognize and remind myself of lack of control.
(By using it as a challenge to everyday situations when applicable)
- Daily review of interactions, evaluate. Identify what I could have done better.
- Keep ticker log of one value or trait I am currently working on.

5. Explore your interpersonal conflicts with others at the time of your sexual offense(s), and use the Conflict Resolution Model to discuss how you could have managed this situation more effectively (this may be directly or indirectly related to your sexual offense).

My conflicts with Kristen:

- I would see her as a whole person, whose wants and needs are important to me. I would focus on open communication to build intimacy.
- I would be assertive and transparent, be vulnerable by sharing my insecurities. I would focus on listening by seeking to understand before I am understood.
- I would process more and seek feedback.
- I would be aware of my tendency with power orientation, and seek two way communications.
- Refrain from criticizing by using put-downs.
- Own my role in situations.

WEATHER HEAT ADVISORY

A National Weather Service Heat Advisory has been issued for Southern Arizona. This includes the Tucson Metropolitan area.

Temperatures are expected to reach or exceed record levels, rising as high as 110 degrees in the Tucson area and 116 degrees in the western deserts.

Additional heat advisories may be issued on Tuesday and Wednesday July 4, when the temperature is expected to reach at least 111 degrees in Tucson.

Temperatures may get up to 13 degrees above normal. For those planning outdoor activities, use extreme caution and drink plenty of fluids to avoid heat-related illnesses.

If possible stay out of the sun, in an air-conditioned room.

ONE ON ONE

This is part five of my series on interviews with our Recreation Staff. In this issue the featured staff member is Recreation Specialist, Mr. Morales, who among his other duties supervises the wellness program. Mr. Morales was kind enough to answer the following five questions;

Q1 - You recently oversaw the "Biggest Loser" weight loss competition. Tell us a little about how that came about and what was the purpose behind such a bold endeavor?

A1 - During the picture night for the Indoor Tour Event the inmate photographer mentioned that it would be a good idea to start a weight loss challenge and I agreed. I then acquired inmate Baslan to help get the event going and the rest is history.

Q2 - Going back to late last year you oversaw the health fair/Tour de Tucson which by all accounts was an overwhelming success, how proud were you of that moment?

A2 - It was a moment that brought me great pride and joy. I really enjoyed taking a concept and making it a reality. The cherry on top was that the inmate population came together and the event was successful, which is a huge compliment to the population.

Q3 - You are the staff member behind the posting of Wellness articles on the inmate electronic bulletin board. What items qualify as worth posting and are you open to ideas?

A3 - Anything qualifies that is in good taste and can improve the lives of the inmate population. I am always open to ideas and many of the articles have been added that were suggested by the population.

Q4 - Is there anything the inmate population can look forward to from your area of recreation, anything you have planned or are planning?

A4 - I plan to continue weight loss and wellness but these six months from July to December I will try to add a fitness challenge and rank all participants on the yard by their fitness level. We also have the upcoming health Fair and Indoor Tour de Tucson coming up in November.

Q5 - You have inmate recreation workers and volunteers who assist you in carrying out your duties. How important are they to getting everything right and running smoothly?

A5 - The inmate recreation workers and volunteers are instrumental to the success and motivation of the inmate population... Without them we would have limited success and motivation of the population. Without them we would have limited success but I am glad to have them and they improve the program tenfold.

WEATHER HEAT ADVISORY

A National Weather Service Heat Advisory has been issued for Southern Arizona. This includes the Tucson Metropolitan area.

Temperatures are expected to reach or exceed record levels, rising as high as 110 degrees in the Tucson area and 116 degrees in the western deserts.

Additional heat advisories may be issued on Tuesday and Wednesday July 4, when the temperature is expected to reach at least 111 degrees in Tucson.

Temperatures may get up to 13 degrees above normal. For those planning outdoor activities, use extreme caution and drink plenty of fluids to avoid heat-related illnesses.

If possible stay out of the sun, in an air-conditioned room.

ONE ON ONE

This is part five of my series on interviews with our Recreation Staff. In this issue the featured staff member is Recreation Specialist, Mr. Morales, who among his other duties supervises the wellness program. Mr. Morales was kind enough to answer the following five questions;

Q1 - You recently oversaw the "Biggest Loser" weight loss competition. Tell us a little about how that came about and what was the purpose behind such a bold endeavor?

A1 - During the picture night for the Indoor Tour Event the inmate photographer mentioned that it would be a good idea to start a weight loss challenge and I agreed. I then acquired inmate Baslan to help get the event going and the rest is history.

Q2 - Going back to late last year you oversaw the health fair/Tour de Tucson which by all accounts was an overwhelming success, how proud were you of that moment?

A2 - It was a moment that brought me great pride and joy. I really enjoyed taking a concept and making it a reality. The cherry on top was that the inmate population came together and the event was successful, which is a huge compliment to the population.

Q3 - You are the staff member behind the posting of Wellness articles on the inmate electronic bulletin board. What items qualify as worth posting and are you open to ideas?

A3 - Anything qualifies that is in good taste and can improve the lives of the inmate population. I am always open to ideas and many of the articles have been added that were suggested by the population.

Q4 - Is there anything the inmate population can look forward to from your area of recreation, anything you have planned or are planning?

A4 - I plan to continue weight loss and wellness but these six months from July to December I will try to add a fitness challenge and rank all participants on the yard by their fitness level. We also have the upcoming health Fair and Indoor Tour de Tucson coming up in November.

Q5 - You have inmate recreation workers and volunteers who assist you in carrying out your duties. How important are they to getting everything right and running smoothly?

A5 - The inmate recreation workers and volunteers are instrumental to the success and motivation of the inmate population... Without them we would have limited success and motivation of the population. Without them we would have limited success but I am glad to have them and they improve the program tenfold.

MEMORANDUM FOR: CENTRAL FILE

FROM: J. Dominguez, Chaplain

SUBJECT: Character Reference for Baslan, B. (#80637-053).

Inmate Baslan is an orderly in the USP's Chapel, assisting in the role of Assistant Librarian. The USP Chapel is the Religious Services main hub for the complex. As such, we manage 19 different religions in three different locations, all while heavily understaffed. Given these challenges, our orderlies play an integral part in the Religious Services department achieving its daily goals.

During my tenure at FCC Tucson, Baslan took on tasks with decisiveness and expediency, often taking initiative and rarely requiring supervision. Baslan's key responsibilities include:

1. Support and assist inmates from diverse religious backgrounds with research and learning about their faith.
2. Assist in maintaining and organizing the digital and print Religions library.
3. Create and implement creative ways for inmates to maximize utilization of library resources.

In addition to these responsibilities, Baslan has managed to remain a well-regarded mentor in the Threshold program. Most importantly, Baslan has remained shot free for the entirety of his incarceration. Under every circumstance, Baslan acts with tact and professionalism towards staff and inmates.

In summary, Baslan understands the mission of our department and conducts himself in a manner congruent with that mission. Respectable work ethic and a true desire to become an asset to society makes him an asset to any hardworking team.

MEMORANDUM FOR CENTRAL FILE

FROM: S. Martin, Supervisory Chaplain

SUBJECT: Inmate Bebars Baslan, Register No. 80637-053

To Whom It May Concern:

It is my pleasure to write this letter in support of Bebars Baslan. I have been working with him on a daily basis in the Federal Bureau of Prisons here in Tucson, AZ for the past two years. He started as an orderly but was quickly promoted to the Library Assistant based on his attention to detail and his ability to motivate and guide the other inmates.

I work with many inmates. However, few are as dedicated and caring as Mr. Baslan. From day one, it was clear that he is here because he truly cares about others and has a heart to serve God. He has developed into a man of understanding by evaluating his past actions, taking responsibility and then having the courage to change.

I have rarely been disappointed with Mr. Baslan's work. His duties are completed efficiently and without hesitation. He is an example for others to follow and many men seek his advice when they have difficulty working through challenging situations. He understands the need to have the Chapel prepared for all services in a timely manner, when others hesitate to do their work, he insists on completing the job first.

Mr. Baslan's desire to improve is constant. He was moved to bring his artistic talent to the Chapel with his painting of a wall mural and serving as a Threshold leader, which is designed to prepare inmates to make better decisions, enhance community reentry, and encourages positive life changes. Mr. Baslan has also been a successfully participant in the Challenge Program, which is another program designed to help inmates understand others and make positive decisions.

I wish I had more orderlies like Mr. Baslan. He is smart, personable, and dedicated. I know that he has a bright future ahead of him. I whole-heartedly believe that Bebars Baslan, if given a chance can become a productive member of society. He has served his time for his previous actions and has learned from his mistakes, he now would like to help others make good decisions to prevent them from making the same mistakes. Please consider this recommendation for Bebars Baslan.

To whom this may concern,

My name is Arturo Ochoa and I am an inmate at the same Federal Penitentiary where inmate Bebars Baslan is housed. This letter is intended to serve as a reference of Bebars Baslan's character based on my observations throughout the years I have known him.

I met Bebars Baslan in 2015 at the prison's chapel, where I have worked since 2013, and where I serve as the head orderly. Bebars Baslan had made a sincere profession of faith in Christ, and I became involved in his discipleship journey. Bebars Baslan completed several Bible base studies offered at our Religious Services Department. He also completed the Threshold Program—a reputable spiritual application program of the Bureau of Prisons, then he was selected to serve as a mentor (1 of 14) in the same program.

After witnessing Bebars Baslan's commitment to faith, sobriety, sexual purity, self-improvement, and service, I invited him to join our carefully selected chapel crew. At the time, Bebars Baslan was working for the Recreation Department—leading Art classes and painting amazing murals throughout the prison, also earning a significantly higher pay than what a Religious Department Job could offer him. Yet in 2019, Bebars Baslan quit his job and joined our chapel crew at the lowest entry level—cleaning toilets daily for less pay. What was his motivation? To serve God and others.

Bebars Baslan, a multit talented person, used his gift and skills to improve our chapel. He painted the entire chapel and decorated it with beautifully-impressive murals. He organized our audio and video equipment, managing several thousands of dollars worth of equipment. He also assisted to create a video self-study program that benefits inmates of all religions. Finally, for his outstanding performance, Bebars Baslan was selected by the Supervisor Chaplain for the coveted job of Chapel Librarian (his current job).

Bebars Baslan's achievements are not only impressive at the Religious Services Department, but they are also impressive at the Psychology Department. Bebars Baslan has completed several psychology programs offered at our prison, most notably completing the Challenge Program in 2017. The Challenge Program is the most intense and best reputed residential treatment program of the Federal Bureau of Prisons. As a resident completer, I have witnessed Bebars Baslan dealing with various treatment issues by applying the program's tools and methods.

Similarly to how Bebars Baslan performed in the chapel, he also produced positive results in the program, after being selected to stay as a volunteer completer. He has been commissioned to paint several murals and now leads the Art Committee. He has assisted to develop and present trainings on subjects like leadership, mediation, anger management, communication, public speaking, etc. He has led various committees and sub-committees within the program. Finally, for his outstanding performance, once again, Bebars Baslan was selected to serve as a mentor (1 of 11) in the Challenge Program.

I could continue presenting facts about Bebars Baslan, however, this is only meant to serve as a summary. I am convinced, based on what I have seen, of the transformation and rehabilitation that Bebars Baslan has achieved. I really hope that he is granted an opportunity, to one day, get out and be the role model he has been here, and do the things he has done here. Everyone deserves a second chance, but he does more than anybody.

Sincerely,

Arturo Ochoa #83785-279
